GENERAL TURKEY TIPS

- Turkey can be handled, cooked and stored in the same way as chicken. There are no special requirements in its handling.

COOKING TIPS

- Appliance temperatures can vary, you may need to adjust cooking times accordingly.
- Poultry is fully cooked when a core temperature of 82°C is achieved.

HANDLING AND STORAGE

- Defrost in the refrigerator only, not on the bench.
- Use separate cutting boards and utensils when handling raw and cooked poultry. Wash these thoroughly with hot, soapy water before and after handling.
- If you cook poultry to eat later, refrigerate while hot.

- Always store cooked foods above raw foods in the refrigerator.
- Keep fresh food refrigerated at or below 4°C.
- Keep frozen food at or below minus 18°C.
- Once poultry has been thawed, do not refreeze.
- After purchasing fully cooked smallgoods, ensure they are stored in the refrigerator with their wrapping sealed until required. After opening, they must be consumed within 3 days.

GENERAL ROASTING TIPS

- Stuffing does not have to be cooked inside the Turkey It can be placed in the pan around the roast, or baked separately in foil or moulds. A shorter cooking time should be used for the stuffing.
- Remember, glazes which contain sugar may burn easily. Brush on these glazes 20-30 minutes before the turkey is cooked.
